

4 Energy

A safe daily supplement which reduces cancer related fatigue.

ONCOLOGIST APPROVED

Recommend with Confidence

Researched and approved by our team of oncologists and oncology-focused pharmacists to not interfere with treatment.

Cancer related fatigue is a common side effect of treatment.

Ginseng, NADH and beetroot are widely accepted as the best natural ingredients for increased energy.

Description

Cancer related fatigue is a very common complaint seen in up to 96% of cancer patients receiving chemotherapy or radiation therapy. Interestingly, fatigue can persist up to 10 years after the diagnosis of cancer. There are many causes of this symptom including chemotherapy which can result in anemia due to bone marrow suppression, malnutrition or cancer by itself. While there is no perfect solution for this problem, there is data to support the use of some natural supplements which can help fatigue without causing serious side effects.

Details

1. What causes the problem, that is specific to cancer patients?

- Chemotherapy and radiation.
- Pain medicines (specifically narcotics).
- Cancer.

2. What does it do?

- Ginseng is widely accepted as the best natural ingredient for increased energy levels.
- NADH.
- Beetroot.

3. Are we avoiding any ingredients?

- Green tea extract (found in many energy products).
- Caffeine and related products (found in many energy products).

Ingredients

All ingredients researched to be non-carcinogenic.

- American Wisconsin Ginseng 2000 mg/day
- NADH 20 mg
- Beetroot 250 mg

Discussion

Have you considered the non-pharmaceutical aspects of your patients' treatment? Most physicians don't have time to research the thousands of supplemental products available today. Many patients are concerned about whether they are doing everything possible to assist in their wellness. They research it themselves on the internet and ask friends and family for advice in choosing supplements. This process may be detrimental or interfere with their treatment protocol.

4CancerWellness's team of oncologists and oncology-focused pharmacists research each supplement carefully, ensuring that they will not interfere with treatment or recovery. Doctors and nurses can therefore recommend 4CancerWellness supplements to their patients with confidence. Patients will also feel reassured knowing that their supplements were recommended by their doctor, increasing good will towards the practice.

Business with 4CancerWellness LLC

4CancerWellness branded product line provides:

- Marketing materials designed for patients.
- Easy ordering and fulfillment process.
- An excellent compensation package for practices and networks.

White label branded product line provides:

- Full service white label branding to your practice or network at a below average cost (branded to your company's identity).
- Easy ordering and fulfillment process.
- An excellent compensation package for practices and networks.

References

- Go to www.4cancerwellness.com/science-research for further research and information on this topic.